Indiginous Poetry. A bard has arisen in Kosciusko of this State. Great times bring out great men. Here are two verses from a reminiscence of Kosciusko we clip from the Chronicle.

As along the stream of life, I float without a wife-Still I dream Of many a happy day, Ive spent when far away, On this stream.

The scene which passes along Even now my vi-ious throng While I go And I feel as once I felt, When at her feet I knelt, In Kosciusko.'
